

FRIEDMANN GETS OFFICIAL NOTICE

Is Met by Physician of United States Marine Hospital Service.

HAS CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Turns Over Quantity of Bacilli to Be Tested by Government.

New York, February 25.—The United States government took official recognition of the claim of Dr. Frederick F. Friedmann to the discovery of a cure for tuberculosis when, by order of the surgeon-general, a physician of the United States Marine Hospital Service, Dr. Milton H. Foster, was sent to meet the young German physician on his arrival here to-day aboard the steamship Kronprinzess Cecilie.

At the request of the government surgeon Dr. Friedmann consented to turn over a quantity of his bacilli to be tested by the government, and to demonstrate the efficacy of his cure before physicians of the hospital service.

Dr. Friedmann, who comes to this country at the invitation of Charles E. Finlay, a New York banker, who hopes the physician will be able to cure his son-in-law of the disease, declared to-night that his cure was not a secret, and that he hoped to make known "to all the world" the method which it was administered. It consisted of bacilli taken from a turtle, into which tubercular bacilli from a human being had been injected, he explained.

"I have been working upon the cure for four years, and in the last two and a half years I have treated from 250 to 300 patients," he asserted.

How many I have absolutely cured I cannot estimate, but their number has run into the hundreds. The remedy cures all forms of tuberculosis except such cases as are quite hopeless—that is, on the point of death. The process is a slow one, but the first effects are to be seen in three weeks after inoculation. The time when an absolute cure can be said to be effected is a matter of months. The method of administering is 50 per cent of the cure.

I want all mankind to benefit by my discovery. I have already turned over some of my bacilli to the German government, and I am very glad to turn it over to the American government."

The surgeon brings a quantity of his bacilli with him, which he expects to deliver to the banker's son-in-law to-morrow.

ORTH LEASTO COACHMAN & L. TEAM

Goes Early Upon Urgent Request From Lexington University.

Plenty of Material.

Lynchburg, Va., February 25.—Al Orth expects to go to-morrow to Lexington to begin his work on the Washington and Lee baseball squad in shape for the coming season. Orth was due to report March 1, but the management at the University has been pleading with him to come early this week, and he promised to go yesterday, and would have done so but for the snowstorm.

The Variety's first big game this year is with Yale at Norfolk on March 21, and it will be no easy work to get the team in shape to meet the Northern team in a bit over three weeks.

The present report is that some very good pitching material is being developed to take the places left by Moran and Thompson. Some went into the professional ranks last season, and the report to the coach is that he can look for another winning aggregation this spring.

Superb Company in Striking Play.

Only a week or two ago, David Belasco set a high mark upon the season's scale with his admirable production of "The Woman," last night the master producer presented at the Academy of Music "The Case of Becky," and with it made a mark upon our memory.

For at least two of the scenes in Edward Locke's play, as they were enacted last night, will doubtless be long remembered by those who saw and heard them. Eyes, ears, mind and heart. And not only those scenes in particular, but the whole play must be observed, thought of, and felt with all these faculties, else much of its force and effect will be lost.

Unlike "The Woman," there is little of the obvious, none of the simply apparent, none of the ordinary, conventional expression of every-day cause and effect. Its whole story and all of its collateral issues, save one completely subordinated and incidental little love tale, depend upon and are the outgrowth of a study, a science that even yet is believed to be in its infancy—hypnotic suggestion and control.

And so delicate, so refined, in the chemical sense of the word, is the development of its idea that only the most careful playing of competent, skilled, or gifted actors could unfold it plausibly or even intelligibly. In the hands of any save such players as Mr. Belasco has supplied, "The Case of Becky" would appear unreal, exaggerated, even impossible.

But these people make the unusual, pitiful, fantastic little tale a vivid tragedy of what may be and doubtless has been, if it ever were, in Stevenson, Du Maurier and the other men who have written for laymen, to say nothing of the scientific searches whose books remain closed to most of us. Every scene, every line, every made up of the theme, but the girl lost only her voice; here she loses her soul.

So much has been written about the play that the bare statement that it contains a study of dual personality sounds trite to one who writes the phrase, so trite indeed that he feels inclined to use quotation marks when he employs it, but it is the only expression that suggests itself with which to indicate accurately the basic theory upon which the play is built.

There is a girl who is two girls. When she is herself, she is Dorothy, a sweet, lovable creature—just a girl in its prettiest sense. But when she is under her evil control, she is Becky, a very imp of perversity, profanity and wickedness—glint of the gutter, vicious and unrestrained.

Fortunately, she has come under the observation of a wise and learned specialist in the study of minds diseased, and from the besting of the play to its end, there is a continuous and strenuous battle between the helpful science of this conscientious alienist and the evil that is Becky, which was created by the malign influence of a magnetic charlatan who poisoned her soul before she came into the world.

This professional hypnotist and showman comes early upon the scene, and in the struggle between animal magnetism and cold science that follows, the contact of the beast with the man, the girl's salvation is wrought. And with the girl's redemption comes the glad knowledge that she is not the child of the beast who seeks her, but the daughter of the man who saves her.

Frances Starr, for several seasons triumphant in "The Earliest Way," plays the girl of two sides, and, in a play bristling with difficulties, again triumphs. Becky is a strong part, a fine part, one that offers many opportunities, but it also lends itself with dangerous facility to faulty, even to comic, interpretation. Starr takes advantage of the opportunity to play much art and avoids the dangers with great skill warrants the use of the word "triumph." In "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a change was made from one personality to another, but it was always played upon a darkened stage and with every accessory that could be brought by lights and other contrivances, but in "The Case of Becky," Miss Starr converts Dorothy into Becky before the very eyes of the audience, and in a blaze of light from borders, lamps and footlights by the aid of art alone. And this scene is one of the two referred to.

But, in spite of the name of Frances Starr, in the role of the high-minded alienist, her work is practically over with the second act, and it is Charles Dalton that one thinks of as he goes out of the theatre. Mr. Dalton, always a fine actor since the days of "The Sign of the Cross" and notable in the notable company that played "Mid-Channel" a season or two ago, was impressive throughout the evening with the unctuous certainty of his fakir, but, in the third act, when he was conquered by the man of science and rendered helpless by mechanical hypnosis, he gave in that ghastly, ghoulish, weird, and almost terrifying in his projection into an uncontrolled self, in the elevation of a profession into art. And that is the other scene mentioned.

Albert Bruning, Harry C. Browne and Eugene O'Brien, all schooled actors, contributed performances such as we have learned to expect from Bruning, of course the best known of the three was intrusted with another most difficult role, that of the alienist. His performance was consistent and sustained throughout; that it seemed to me a bit lighter, less than that of the man who would expect him in such a part is doubtless due solely to a difference of opinion, and Mr. Belasco employs him, not me. The one woman in the cast was very evidently new to the part, so no comment will be made upon her work.

The settings were remarkable—even for David Belasco.

GREATER RICHMOND BOWLING TO TORNEY

Great interest is being taken in the Greater Richmond Bowling Tournament by the local bowlers, and the entry list, so far as the local bowlers are concerned, is very promising. The tournament, which is being held at the Washington hotel, will begin on Monday night, and will continue for a week.

The Petersburg bowlers have sent in a large entry list, and no doubt the Cuckoo City will shine in the coming event. Secretary Goetz has received the entry blanks and will begin sending them out to-day to all the bowlers. Petersburg has already entered seven five-men teams and sixteen two-men teams, and all will take part in the singles. This is indeed a fine showing for the association.

The Remington five knocked the pins to every corner of the alleys last night and put the champion Alcos in a bad way by winning all three games. The Alcos team, ever put up a game fight. Captain Ellis made a new record in just nine minutes when he put up 60 for high total, taking the honors for the first game. Captain Ellis also put up a great game, winning the Alcos five for high score and high average, with 87 for high score and 27 for high average.

The Makeups defeated the Monotones two of three games in The Times-Dispatch League last night on the Newport Alley. Helford led for high score and also high total. Burke failed in his second game.

WILL TAKE STAND IN OWN DEFENSE

William A. Dorr, Charged With Murder of George E. Marsh, to Testify To-Day.

Salem, Mass., February 25.—William A. Dorr, charged with the murder of George E. Marsh, a retired business man of wealth, will take the stand to-morrow in his own defense. This announcement by counsel afforded the second surprise of the trial to-day. Early to-day Charles N. Barney frankly admitted that his client shot Marsh, though, as he asserted, in self-defense. The evidence against Dorr is circumstantial.

The State this morning rested its case, in which it has attempted to show that Dorr came East to kill Marsh in order that his aunt, Orpha Marsh, with whom he lived in Stockton, Cal., might profit.

The purpose of Dorr's trip East, the lawyer explained, was to straighten out the $100,000 trust fund held by Marsh for Miss Marsh and to protect the latter's interests. To substantiate this claim the defense introduced in evidence letters from Miss Marsh to Marsh complaining that her property was being mismanaged.

RAIN CAN'T STOP JUAREZ RACING

Ladies' Day Brings Out Large Attendance—Three Favorites Cash for Layers.

Juarez, February 25.—Ladies day contributed to a large attendance this afternoon, and despite the heavy rain storm that began after the second race, some fairly good sport was witnessed. The rain did not affect the going, and the horses ran pretty close to form.

First choices were returned winners in three instances, Camia, Pimoroso and Cosgrave being the successful horses, whose victory was largely due to the opening at 4 to 1 to 2 to 1.

The purse race at six furlongs witnessed the defeat of Irish Gentleman, the well-played favorite. The winner turned up in El Patomar, the second choice, whose victory was largely due to his light impost and the well guarded ride of Hill.

Doc Allen and Shorty Northcutt were the longest priced winners of the day. Results:

First race—six furlongs: Doc Allen, 10 to 1, won; Angus, 7 to 1, second; Jack Ellis, 8 to 5, third. Time, 1:14 1/5. Evellina, Auto Girl, Salvage, Co-Ed, Quick Trip, Blaze B., Zinkland, Laminster and Zool also ran.

Second race—six furlongs: Camia, 5 to 2, won; Hanson, 3 to 1, second; Lovell Mose, 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:14 3/5. Bula Welch, Sprightly Miss, Minnie F., Amity, Garden of Allah and Ardelen, also ran.

Third race—five and one-half furlongs: Pimoroso, 7 to 5, won; Mona Canonam, 8 to 5, second; Palatable, 7 to 10, third. Time, —. John Hurle, Royal Dolly, Batawa and Dominica, also ran.

Fourth race—six furlongs: three-year-olds and up, purse $400. El Patomar, 12 to 5, won; Irish Gentleman, 1 to 2, second; Pride of Lismore, even, third. Time, 1:14 2/5. Injury also ran.

Fifth race—six furlongs, four-year-olds and up, selling: Cosgrave, 4 to 1, won; Orba Smile, 2 to 1, second; Catnet, 7 to 10, third. Time, 1:14. Ferrona, Russell, McGill, Ormar Lad, Sir Barry, Oswald B., Fanciel Hall, Rosey Posey, also ran.

Sixth race—five and one-half furlongs: Lemo and one-sixteenth of a mile, four-year-olds and up, selling: Shorty Northcutt, 4 to 1, won; L. M. Eckert, 8 to 5, second; Gelleo, 3 to 2, third. Time, 1:50 3/5. Flying, Lotta Creed, Little Marchmont, John Louis, Canton, also ran.

ACTION DEFERRED

Future of Iron Workers' Union to Be Considered.

Indianapolis, Ind., February 25.—Action on all questions involving the future of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, all but two of whose officials were convicted at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial, December 22, was postponed to be deferred until after the visit from American Federation of Labor.

After Frank M. Ryan, the president, and John T. Butler, the first vice-president, and thirty-one other executive board members and business agents of the Iron Workers' Union were convicted last December, the union was left without a president and without a plan for reorganizing the union.

President Ryan announced he had received a telegram from Gompers stating that the I. W. O. A. was to be held Thursday. It was said Mr. Gompers was expected to advise the delegates what course to pursue. The Iron Workers' Union, which has 12,000 members and about ninety local unions, is a member of the American Federation of Labor.

PLAYERS OPPOSE REDUCED LIMIT

International League on Verge of Big Strike—Result of Lower Salary Limit.

New York, February 25.—Mutiny threatens the players of the International League. The players of Mr. Barrow's circuit have banded together to thwart the $6,000 a month limit per club, which was recently adopted by the class AA minor organization.

The players, it was learned, have made overtures to the baseball players' fraternal order, hoping thereby to be in better position to fight the three demands. President J. J. Lillis, of Jersey City club, declares himself determined to observe strictly the low salary legislation, but he says he has no objection to the players' union.

President Chapin, of Rochester, is not among the insurgents, although he has one of the highest priced teams in the league. He has notified his men that all who have not signed by March 1 will be suspended for the entire season. The new salary limit means wholesale slicing of contract figures in Rochester.

Palmer for Caucus Chairman.

Washington, February 25.—Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, Democratic national committeeman of that State, is expected to be chairman of the Democratic caucus in the next House of Representatives, indications to-night being that he is not to be a member of the new Cabinet. This was revealed when Representative Burleson announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election as caucus chairman.

President-Elect Wilson, according to reports to-night, has expressed a wish that Mr. Palmer might serve as chairman of the caucus in the busy sessions of the next Congress, and it is known that Representative Underwood, of Alabama, conducted by Senator Guggenheim, favors Mr. Palmer's selection.

Democrats of the new House will hold their first caucus March 5, and Mr. Palmer will be put in nomination for the post of permanent presiding officer of the caucus, and will have the backing of the present House leaders.

Mr. Palmer, who is prominent in the tariff revision work, has charge of the metal schedule in the framing of the new tariff legislation now under way for submission at the extra session of Congress.

Only Nine in Cabinet.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Washington, February 25.—There will be only nine members in the Cabinet, and not ten, as President-Elect Wilson hoped for, bar a miracle. A. H. Ahlstrom, a leader of the Guggenheim, who never before did more on the floor than answer to his name, killed the bill for to-night and probably for the session.

There were exactly forty-eight Senators in the chamber, forty-seven being necessary to a quorum. Guggenheim and Gronna, of North Dakota, refused to answer their names, and Guggenheim raised the point of no quorum every time Senator Borah, the father of the bill, attempted to get a vote.

Shortly before midnight, after the sergeant-at-arms had been ordered to bring in the absentees, Senator Borah gave up the fight for the night and consented to an adjournment. Most of the Senators had already put their
